

ATION, STATES SEEK METHOD TO CONTROL LIQUOR

Completion Of Repeal Presents Problems To Authorities

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—A nation that had made federal prohibition a repealed constitutional amendment worked hard today to adjust itself to the new order of things.

And, surprisingly to some, the 20 states whose laws permitted the sale of hard liquor after Utah late yesterday became the 36th to ratify repeal had comparatively few citizens feeling the worse today for celebrations. Throughout the country, the festivities seemed to lack the fervor some had forecast.

In many cases, the supply was scant; in several states, regulatory set-ups had not been completed so the liquor suppliers were few.

There were, too, many indications that a number of state officials expected to follow the lead of President Roosevelt who, in proclaiming repeal of the nearly 14-year-old law, stated his future aims in these words:

To Avoid Evils

"The policy of the government will be to see to it that the social and political evils that have existed in the pre-prohibition era shall not be revived nor permitted again to exist."

He asked "especially that no state shall by law or otherwise authorize the return of the saloon either in its old form or in some modern guise" and said the "objective we seek through a national policy is the education of every citizen toward a greater temperance throughout the nation."

The organization he was creating to effectuate that declared policy plugged away on the hundreds of problems necessitated by the repeal of a law which left no regulatory statutes in its place. The recovery and agriculture acts with their code

Green said that of two cases reported, a fee of $1,300 was paid in one and $400 in another. At the same time officials of the Chicago office reported charges of slowness in completing loans by saying 405 had been made in Illinois against an average of 247 for each other state.

He was sentenced to Joliet from Cook county.

MINERS' HOME BOMBED

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Houses owned by two Riverton miners were bombed last night in what officials feared was a renewal of mine warfare in Sangamon county.

Thomas Marsh and Lee Hulett, owners of the damaged houses, are former Progressive miners who rejoined the United Mine Workers of America two months ago. They are employed by the Peabody Coal Company.

SANTA TO BRING ATTRACTIONS TO THIS CITY SOON

Will Be Seen In Great Parade Next Tuesday Afternoon at 1

News of Santa's pre-Christmas visit in Dixon which is to take place next Tuesday has become the universal and all-important topic of conversation wherever people read The Telegraph.

Enthusiasm has reached such a peak that the Dixon American Legion has come forward to lead Santa's parade when the jolly old saint visits here, the committee in charge announced today.

Heading the parade at 1 P. M. the Legionnaires very fittingly will bear the colors of the United States, the Stars and Stripes. Santa, like the Legionnaires, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and every other red-blooded American citizen, believes in patriotism and the heroism it inspires and inculcates.

Bearing out this theme of patriotism, other features of the parade will make an appeal to young and old alike who always thrill to a display of loyalty to their native land. Interspersed throughout the parade will be numerous gorgeous plush banners. One of these is to bear the inscription, "Loyalty to the U. S. A." and will accompany a living impersonation of the national character, Uncle Sam, in the parade.

DIVERSION OF GASOLINE TAX IS HELD VALID

A Springfield Judge Refuses Injunction: Appeal Probable

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 5.—(AP)—Diversion of gasoline tax revenues to pay for unemployment relief was upheld as constitutional today by Circuit Judge L. E. Stone.

In a verbal opinion, he refused to issue an injunction restraining state officials from using the gasoline tax revenues to make the first interest payment December 15 on the $20,000,000 relief bond issue adopted last year.

There was a possibility that the case would be immediately appealed to the Illinois Supreme Court, but the favorable ruling removed the danger that the state's financing program might be disrupted.

Important Decision

The decision was regarded as of far reaching importance as it concerns not only the $20,000,000 bond program already expended for relief, but, indirectly, also the $30,000,000 issue of debentures with which the state plans to meet its unemployment problem during the ensuing six months. The $30,000,000 program is predicated on the identical structure as was that of the issue today held constitutional.

Judge Stone upheld the legal arguments of Assistant Attorney General Montgomery S. Winning, who made a successful plea of several months ago in the same court for the two per cent sales tax law. The gas tax suit was brought by Attorney A. M. Fitzgerald of Springfield, who contended that the diversion was not only illegal but that the bond issue was also invalid.

His injunction plea was predicated on the theory that the gas tax should be used only for highway construction and maintenance, its original purpose.

Roosevelt Creates Another Council to Spread Information

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today created a National Emergency Council to coordinate the information services throughout the country so as to throw a clearer light upon the government's recovery activities.

The council will consist of the Secretaries of the Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor, the administrators of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, the NRA, the Federal Emergency Relief Organization, the Home Loan Organization, the Farm Credit Administration and a representative of the Consumers' Council.

The President has designated F. Frank Walker, Executive Secretary of the Executive Council, to serve as Director of the new council for the time being.

State directors to coordinate the work of county and city sub-councils will be appointed.

The principal purpose of the organization will be to serve as a central information bureau for all those seeking information about government agencies.

President Speaks To Church Council

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt speaks tonight to the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, but his aides gave no indication today that he would discuss anything but religious subjects.

Because of recent public argument over the administration's monetary policy, there had been some wonder as to whether the President would talk about that in his first speech since he returned to Washington from a Warm Springs, Georgia, vacation.

The President's address at Constitution hall will be broadcast over the nation-wide hookups beginning at 10:30 P. M. Eastern Standard Time.

Additional Chapters In Making To Steadily Lengthening Story, "The Pursuit Of Samuel Insull"

Athens, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The possibility that more chapters may be added to that steadily lengthening story, "The Pursuit of Samuel Insull" was heightened measurably today.

Greece, the former American utilities czar, present haven of refuge from extradition, will ask him to leave when his police permit expires December 31, reliable sources said yesterday.

But this it was indicated, should not be taken to mean necessarily that Insull can be returned immediately to Chicago to face extradition moves.

Goodfellows, Hear! Christmas Is Near—

Hundreds of little children in Dixon will have a bleak and unhappy Christmas unless the Goodfellows of this community come forward with donations and offers of help. The Evening Telegraph Goodfellow Club can furnish the names and addresses of families for Goodfellows who will give them a Christmas, or if Goodfellows care to make cash donations the money will be spent to give some Christmas cheer to the youngsters. Every penny donated will be devoted to the purpose intended. There is no overhead expense.

Christmas is near at hand and if the Goodfellow Club is to function efficiently donations must come in promptly. Mail or leave them at the Dixon Telegraph office in care of the Goodfellow club.

CUBAN DECREE HITS AMERICAN ELECTRIC FIRM

Appeal to U. S. State Department Likely To Be Result

Havana, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Ignoring the American-owned Cuban Electric Company's threat to shut down its plants if compelled to reduce rates more than 20 per cent, the government of President Grau San Martin declared today that it must reduce rates approximately 34 percent.

At the same time the government declared a moratorium on consumers' past due bills and threatened to fine the $300,000,000 concern if one employee is discharged or any wage or salary is reduced as a result of its curtailed income.

There were strong indications that company officials might appeal to the American State Department at Washington. Officials characterized the decree as "confiscation of property."

If the company wants to abandon its plants as a result of the decree, Dr. Antonio Gutierrez, Secretary of the Interior said, the government stands ready to take them over.

After the conference Dr. Gutierrez went to Camp Columbia to visit Colonel Fulgencio Batista, Chief of Staff of the Cuban Army, but remained at the palace long enough to assure reporters a law would become effective Friday which would make it compulsory that 50 per cent of the employees in all commerce and industry in Cuba be native Cubans.

Saying he expected some trouble in Havana when the law becomes effective, the Secretary added that it would provide that the proportion of Cubans be gradually increased to 80 per cent.

Tax Commission In Disagreement

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Disagreement today had cropped up among members of the legislative commission considering taxation reform in Illinois through a constitutional amendment.

The tendency was toward simplifying the revenue article of the state constitution, but the commission failed to agree as to the proper method in a brief session last night and another meeting was called for next Tuesday.

Rep. F. W. Lewis, Robinson Democrat and chairman of the commission, proposed that the amendment should permit the legislature, on a two-thirds vote to have unlimited revenue raising powers.

Several members insisted that unless the Assembly is reappointed to give Cook county control on a population basis, Chicagoans would insist on the two-thirds vote provision.

Find Los Angeles Surgeon Beaten to Death in His Home

Los Angeles, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The body of Dr. Dewey Whitman, 43, a prominent surgeon of Los Angeles, who had been shot and beaten to death, was found early today in a bedroom of his palatial home overlooking Silver Lake.

A .22 caliber rifle, its stock smashed, was apparently the death instrument. It lay beside the body.

Detectives said the surgeon had been repeatedly struck over the head and that the rifle had been fired. There were indications they reported of a terrific struggle, but added that Dr. Whitman's wife and his 3-year-old son and 5-year-old daughter, who slept in an adjoining room, were not awakened by it.

SENATOR HUEY TAKES STOCK OF NEW REBELLION

Irate La. Voters Burned Long In Effigy With Personal Warning

New Orleans, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, claimed by the administration to have been elected to Congress from the sixth congressional district yesterday, today offered to cancel the results of yesterday's procedure and enter a party primary for the post.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 6.—(AP)—The Sixth District congressional election ordered by Senator Huey P. Long in which he picked Mrs. Bolivar E. Kemp, Sr., widow of the late Representative Kemp for the office vacated by his death, is over but a fiery memory lingers on.

Change in effigy, after which the dummy was soaked with kerosene and burned from the gallows while clad in green pajamas and bearing the placard "in effigy now—in person next," Huey P. Long from his Roosevelt hotel suite in New Orleans took stock today of the rebellion as he counted the returns of yesterday's election.

Governor O. K. Allen issued the election call—after refusing for months the demands of rival candidates for the vacant office that he first call a primary to permit them to run.

Met Outside District

Long's party was nominated by Long-controlled members of the district Democratic executive committee who met in New Orleans, outside of the Sixth district.

The election was quiet, comparatively speaking, but mass meeting speaking in denunciation of the method dotted the district in terms unheard of even during the impeachment days of Long when he was Governor.

The vote in nine out of twelve parishes in the district which held an election in at least some precincts represented about one-tenth of the qualified electors of the parishes voting.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO CHAS. HENRY JOHNSON

Well Known Dixon- ite Died Suddenly Tuesday at 4

Charles Henry Johnson, a life long resident of this vicinity, died very suddenly at his home, 609 Galleria avenue, yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. He was in his room preparing to take a walk to the business district when he was stricken and expired almost instantly, before medical attention could be secured. He had been ill for the past two weeks, during which time he was confined to his home, where he resided with his mother, Mrs. Sarah Johnson who is almost 92 years of age.

Teachers Propose Revenue Sources

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Taxes on incomes and grain futures were asked today by representatives of the Illinois Teachers' Association as a means of financing the state's public school system.

Confronted with dwindling revenue as a result of delinquencies and with school debts increasing, the legislative committee of the association placed an emergency program before Francis G. Blair, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The committee planned to confer with Governor Horner to ask special laws by the next special session.

Three new sources of revenue were proposed by the teachers. They are:

A two per cent tax on all incomes other than those of corporations.

A three per cent net income tax on all corporations doing business in Illinois.

A tax of 1-4 cent a bushel on all sales and purchases of grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Lindbergs Fly 1,875 Mi. Across South Atlantic to Natal, Brazil, Today

Made Leisurely Trip From Africa; Ran Into Squalls Present Flight Is Far Cry From Famous One In 1927

Natal, Brazil, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here this afternoon after a 1,875-mile flight across the South Atlantic ocean from Bathurst, Gambia, Africa.

The great monoplane landed on the harbor here at 11:55 A. M. CST. The streets and docks were thronged with huge crowds of Brazilians who had waited throughout the day for the arrival of the famous American couple.

By general agreement, all business houses and stores in the city were closed for nearly an hour before the Lindberghs arrived in celebration of the great event.

The streets were gaily decorated for the "fiesta." For more than a week past, the populace had been excited by reports that Col. Lindbergh and his wife would return to the American continent through their city.

For Lindbergh it was the third aerial spanning of the Atlantic. His first flight, in 1927, skyrocketed him to the attention of the whole world. On that occasion, flying the famous "Spirit of St. Louis," he stayed in the air 33½ hours before the lights of Le Bourget field appeared before him. The distance on that occasion was 3,610 miles, almost double what he did today.

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, completing a transatlantic flight from Africa, landed at Natal, Brazil, at 11:55 A. M. CST. today, a message to Pan-American Airways said.

The Flying Colonel and his wife who gave him invaluable assistance in the second most important ocean journey he has made since the New York-to-Paris trip, covered the 1,875 miles over the South Atlantic in 15 hours and 53 minutes.

It was a leisurely journey in which Lindbergh did not push his big plane, which is capable of making at least 160 miles an hour.

The Colonel and his wife took off from the harbor at Bathurst, Gambia, at 2 A. M. G. M. T. today (9 P. M. Tuesday, E. S. T.).

Para, Brazil, Dec. 6.—(AP)—The ocean-hopping monoplane of the Charles A. Lindberghs raced the sun across the South Atlantic ocean today, out of Bathurst, Gambia for Natal, Brazil.

The plane rose in bright moonlight from the waters around St. Mary Island on which Bathurst stands at 2 o'clock this morning. Greenwich time, (8:00 P. M. Tuesday).

The distance from Bathurst to Natal is about 1,875 miles.

Encountered Squalls

Weather reports at the hour of take-off were favorable over the entire route, but the plane was not far on its journey before its wireless reported to the Pan American Airways station here that squalls were being encountered.

Progress of the plane was regularly reported. The course Colonel Lindbergh took was almost due southwest.

The sun had crept up behind them and the plane was speeding smoothly through the dawn when squalls appeared in the fliers' path. No note of worry came, however, came from the plane as Mrs. Lindbergh messaged at 12:72 P. M.

"Skies overcast, weather squally. Visibility three miles. Daybreak. All well."

Sea Calm, No Wind

These squalls were quickly passed, but others lay ahead. At 1:15 A. M. the wireless mentioned "frequent squalls." The plane at that hour—five hours and 15 minutes out of Bathurst—was 530 miles on its way.

Although mentioning squalls, Mrs. Lindbergh reported the sea calm and no wind. It was shortly after this hour that the plane entered the zone between the north and south trade winds. That phase of the journey found the plane roaring through still air.

The reports from Mrs. Lindbergh indicated that the plane was following a true course between the two continents, just as Lindbergh drove his ship straight to Le Bourget field, Paris, from New York in May 1927.

The 1927 flight, like that of today, was in a single motor plane. The distance, however, was twice as great and required thirty-three and one-half hours. On that flight Lindbergh—"Slim" then, Colonel now—flew alone.

Most Valuable Tapestry

After being lost for many years, a tapestry, declared to be the most valuable in France, was found in a dusty closet in the church of St. Eustache, one of the largest churches in Paris. The discovery was the result of following up an old legend, long told in ecclesiastical circles, that a very valuable work of art in the form of cloth was hidden in one of the Paris churches. A number of churches were searched, and finally in a forgotten cupboard high up in the sacristy of St. Eustache, the tapestry was discovered. The tapestry, which is on view at the church, has the Bourbon arms entwined with palms. The outer edge is in lilacs, and the inner edge has clusters of roses.

HORNER, KELLY ARE AT ODDS ON LIQUOR CONTROL

Governor Wants State Control: Mayor For Full Home Rule

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 6.—(AP)—Two diametrically opposed ideas, one championed by Governor Horner and the other by Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago, are responsible for the arrival of repeal in Illinois without a state regulatory act of any kind being on the books.

Mayor Kelly, whose leadership is being followed by most of the Chicago members of the General Assembly, insists on "home rule." His Representatives in the Assembly refuse to consider any liquor bill which will weaken home rule in any way.

Horner, who first sought to let the legislature do as it pleased, has changed tactics. Upon seeing that the Assembly, if allowed to drift aimlessly, would probably pass a simple licensing act, much after the manner desired by Kelly, the Governor let it be known that he favored a state commission with powers to revoke local licenses.

Wants State Revenue

The Governor insists that a commission would not violate the principle of "home rule," that its establishment with powers limited to revocation of licenses would tend to prevent a repetition of the "evils of the old saloon." He also desires a state license fee, as well as a gallon tax, in order to strengthen his position in bringing about an abatement in real estate taxes.

Chicago Representatives, following the Mayor's leadership, will have none of a state commission and insist all revenue to be derived from the sale of liquor should go into the coffers of the municipalities or counties.

Downstate With Horner

Downstate members, both Republican and Democratic, have, so far as they have indicated their intention, shown a tendency to follow the Governor in opposition to the Chicago mayor.

When a liquor law is finally passed, it is probable the roll call will show it has been accomplished by a fusion of downstate members, irrespective of party, with Cook county Republicans. This would provide the necessary two-thirds vote.

Another solution of the deadlock, to which more attention has been given in the past few days, is that of passing a regulatory measure by a majority vote in which event the law would not become operative until July 1. In addition to passage of such a measure this scheme provides for the enactment of an interim gallonage tax so that the state would not lose revenue until the regulatory act became effective.

Such a plan does not meet with the Governor's approval. He has said that he believes Illinois should put a "first class regulatory act on the books" immediately. It is possible that he will alter this decision if it becomes apparent that advocates of state control can not obtain sufficient votes for an emergency measure but can muster a majority vote.

Some Questions About Repeal Are Answered Below

Washington, Dec. 6.—(AP)—Here are the answers to some of your questions about repeal:

The Eighteenth Amendment remains in the Constitution. The repealing Twenty-first is tacked on the end.

The Department of Justice has not yet adopted a general policy covering the possibility of freeing from prison persons convicted of liquor law violations. Neither has it determined definitely what to do about pending liquor cases.

The 13-mile limit will continue to exist. Treaties with 17 nations remain in effect, permitting the United States to examine ship's papers within an hour's sailing of the coast to prevent liquor smuggling.

The former Prohibition Bureau, converted into the prohibition unit of the Justice Department's Bureau of Investigation, has been designated the Alcohol Beverage Unit. Prohibition agents have been assigned to aid Treasury officials in liquor tax work in wet states and to cooperate with officials in dry states.

Special action of Congress will be required to effect repeal in the District of Columbia and in territories and insular possessions.

Perhaps 60,000,000 persons in the country can now drink their liquor lawfully.

PEORIA THINKS IT WILL BECOME BOOM TOWN SOON

Distilleries Start Running Night and Day With Repeal

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 6.—(AP)—As the "Alcohol Capital of America," Peoria has come back with a bang.

Smoke puffs upward from boilers idle for 14 years, 2000 workmen hammer and saw and dig to complete $16,500,000 of construction, coal diggers tunnel in mines about the countryside to provide an extra 1000 tons of fuel daily to a revived industry.

Already, thousands of gallons of whisky have begun to pour daily into bottles and barrels in the distilleries, shiny with new paint, that the countryside to provide an extra 1000 tons of fuel daily to a revived industry.

Business leaders and officials of the Chamber of Commerce have looked upon the new business, re-employment, rising real estate values, and declared Peoria—a city of 100,000 population about 125 miles southwest of Chicago—to be the new "boom town" of America.

Products Adequate

Regarding the question of Peoria's ability to supply a goodly portion of the nation's liquor demands, leaders in the distilling industry said the production capacity soon would be adequate.

Upon completion of distilling plants already under way, the full time production will be 250,000 gallons of whisky daily. The pre-prohibition rate in the days of the Great Western distillery, once the world's largest but now razed, was 140,000 gallons a day.

To be sure, only a puny supply of matured domestic whisky is on hand, but blended stocks "bootleggers might call it "cut" whisky, estimated at 525,000 gallons, have been turned out in temporary quarters, deserted factory sites hurriedly leased and equipped.

Rush New Plants

Fifteen thousand gallons of imported whisky have arrived from Canada, principally bottled goods. In blended liquor, 350 barrels are being produced daily with prospects of a steady increase until completion of major plants Feb. 1.

Another form of hard liquor, gin, has started to flow with a force that indicates there never will be a shortage. Production has been stepped up to 6000 cases daily with 180,000 cases always on hand. Foundries and copper works have been swamped with orders for gin domes or "heads," the most important equipment in manufacturing the water colored liquor.

The interior of the store is distinguished by its simplicity of design and total lack of customary conflicting coloration. In an effort to match in a small way, the work of the late Joseph Urban, the color genius responsible for the remarkable effects of the Chicago Exposition, National Tea architects have very successfully carried out in this store a unique blend of green and yellow.

URGED TO ATTEND ILL. T. B. MEET FRIDAY EVENING—

All members of the Dixon League of Women Voters are urged to attend the Illinois Tuberculosis Assn. meeting at Moose hall Friday evening.

Mrs. Powell Tells of Enjoyable Picnic at Alhambra, California

Mrs. G. P. Powell of Dixon who is spending some time this winter in Artesia, Cal., has written several letters which have been much enjoyed by friends in this office and excerpts of her letters polished.

She writes again on Dec. 1st from California and speaks at some length of a picnic which she attended a few days before writing the letter. She says:—

"The picnic was held in the Alhambra Park, and just a few Dixonites attended, but there were forty in all in attendance, and everyone seemed glad to see each other and we had a most sumptuous dinner. I may not remember all the names of those present, but those were the grown up children and their married names. Most people remember Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fargo and daughter Florence, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Haverstock and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Niles Palmer and children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keys, Roberta and Ruth, Edwina and Lida, Mr. and Mrs. H. Baker and daughter Stella of Los Angeles, Mrs. A. D. George, J. Ortesen, Harry Ortesen of Long Beach and their family, Mrs. Nagle, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Powell and myself.

This was the first time I had seen the folks I came out with, since the night I arrived, and they informed me they would be starting home next week. They are in Los Angeles, about thirty miles from here.

I have had a wonderful time and everyone here has been so nice to me and wants me to come here to live. I do like California with its sunny weather, but like everywhere it is not perfect. They have had all the unusual weather it seems possible to have, since I came here. I have been in fogs, rain, wind, dust, and last night we had a frost and it nipped some of the beautiful poinsettias. So it is just like LIFE, isn't it? Not all sunshine and roses, but a few clouds and dreary days to make us appreciate all the more the sunshine when it comes. Oh yes! I forgot to mention the earthquakes. They had two one night hard enough to wake me out of a sound slumber. My bed was shaking and my windows rattling, but the paper next night called them very slight. But people who live here are used to them.

I am happy to have had this trip and wonderful time seeing old friends, and the beautiful scenery, etc., but I will be glad to see dear, old Dixon again.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. G. P. Powell

WHY CALL ON UNCLE SAM FOR HELP?

The last few months have seen federal authorities moving swiftly and effectively to strike at organized kidnaping gangs. It has been pretty clearly proved that Uncle Sam's men can do a better job of rounding up such crooks than local police can.

The result has been widespread agitation in favor of extending the power of federal law enforcement agencies over all fields of crime prevention and detection.

Joseph B. Keenan, the assistant attorney general under whose direction some of the most spectacular anti-kidnaping drives have taken place, recognized this not long ago, in a speech in Ohio.

"There is increasing demand for the federal government to ignore the law and make a cleanup," he said. "President Roosevelt even has been asked to declare martial law and rout out the crooks."

"This is unsound. Purely local crimes can be suppressed locally, but some—once local—have become national because of improved transportation, and in these the government can act. But it is not going to violate law and order to get at criminals for violating the law."

The clamor for martial law and a Mussolini-like drive on all fronts has died down somewhat in the last week or so. But there remains the underlying issue: Would it be profitable for us to reorganize our entire system of police work and put a much larger share of it in the hands of the federal government?

The facts of the situation make this look very attractive, in many ways. Every citizen of a good-sized city is familiar with the way police talk about "known gunmen," "prominent racketeers," "the so-and-so gang," and so on, without accompanying their words with action.

The contrast between this frequent admission of police helplessness and the efficiency with which federal operatives strike at gangsterism is too striking to overlook.

Yet the problem is far from simple. Federalizing our police would call into question our whole system of local government. The "home rule" principle we are so fond of certainly would suffer. The government might carry us a good deal farther than we would wish to be carried.

Back of it all there lies the simple fact that a local police force can be made just as efficient, for combating local crimes as any police force needs to be. The one thing that prevents it from reaching this efficiency—in the vast majority of cases—is politics.

In the long run, we shall get the kind of police work we want when we get honest, decent, and efficient local government. If we do that, we won't need to call on Uncle Sam for help.

FICTION IN FACT.

Oscar Wilde, or somebody, once remarked that nature frequently mimics art—by which he seems to have meant that things often happen in real life which might have been copied directly from the pages of some work of fiction.

Bearing this in mind, one is almost inclined to suspect that that "operating table" murder in Chicago was devised by someone who had read deeply of Mary Roberts Rinehart or S. S. Van Dine.

For here, surely, is an affair that copies the most imaginative sort of fiction. A gloomy house in a decayed neighborhood, a strange slaying, an air of somber mystery, a nude corpse in a basement room—about all that is needed is to have Philo Vance stroll in, light a cigaret, and exclaim, "Gad, I don't like it—something horrible has happened here!"

Repeal will be a great help to the cause of music.—Geo. Gershwin, American composer.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

A wooden soldier raised his hand and shouted, "Gates of Santa Land pray open wide, so all the Tiny-mites can enter here."

"They're going to help old Santa do his work. They'll stay till he is through. They are six willing tots who want to help to spread good cheer."

The other guard said, with a smile, "Get set to walk in, single file. Then, do whatever the toy man says. He'll show you all around. 'You'll shortly be real tickled 'cause you're going to meet ol' Santa Claus. You'll all agree he is the finest man you've ever found.'"

The two big gates then opened wide. "Come follow me," the toy man cried. "Don't worry," answered Dotty. "You can rest assured we will."

They walked a little ways and then saw both the gates swing shut again. "Well, we're inside, all right," exclaimed wee Duncy. "What a thrill!"

The toy man interrupted. He exclaimed, "A hunch has just struck me. Before we go to Santa, I will dress you in work clothes."

"Fine overalls will nicely do. I have some for each one of you. Then you'll look like real workers. Twill please Santa, goodness knows."

They walked up to a little shop. The man exclaimed, "Here's where we stop." And, when they went inside, he hauled out overalls galore. Each Timmyte tried on a pair. The toy man shouted, "You look rare! They fit you all so funny that twill make ol' Santa roar."

Wee Goldy frowned and said, "Aw, shoot! I don't think we look half as cute in these as in our own nice clothes. For them I'm not so strong."

Then Scouty added, "I agree. The suits just don't appeal to me." The toy man smiled and said "You wint! I guess my hunch was wrong."

Making the New Deal
A Better One for the Car Owner

IT IS the local automobile dealer who must translate the New Deal into terms of specific benefit to the motorist. As the local representative of a great industry and sharing its responsibility to the public, the automobile dealer as well as the manufacturer today must see that the car owner receives more than he used to get.

This is in no fundamental sense a new task for the manufacturer of Chevrolet cars nor for ourselves. Our own local business always has been operated upon the principle that we are responsible to our customer for complete, constant and permanent satisfaction in ownership. Come in and see how the new Chevrolet cars make car ownership today a source of greater owner satisfaction than ever before.

SOAP AND IODINE

Since the early part of this century, tincture of iodine has been widely used as a disinfecting agent. In surgical operations the area involved is usually swathed with iodine before the surgeon begins to operate.

Some surgeons, opposing the procedure, argue that tincture of iodine does not render the field of operation sterile for more than 20 minutes.

These opponents have argued further that tincture of iodine produces a varnish-like covering over the skin to which it is applied that this cover after a while breaks and cracks, and that the underlying living germs soon emerge.

These scientists have gone further and have offered evidence to substantiate their claims. They reported that by scraping the skin with sterile platinum wires 20 minutes after the tincture of iodine had been applied to it, they had been able to collect living bacteria and to cultivate them.

A number of those who have opposed the use of tincture of iodine on the ground that it is unsafe have substituted for it soap and water.

At the hospital at Havre, Dr. Robert Sorel prepares his surgical patients by first giving them a prolonged bath. When brought to the operating table, the field of operation is washed again with sterile soap.

After the operation and when the skin is closed, the area is cleaned once again with sterile soap and a sterile compress is applied to the wound.

No antiseptic fluid is employed at any time. Ten years' experience with this technique has given good results.

The point of value in this controversy is that both procedures have been proved good.

Tincture of iodine, where its irritating effects are not a serious drawback to its use, is an excellent antiseptic. In combination with a preliminary soap and water washing, it is almost ideal. If iodine is lacking, soap and water liberally applied make an excellent antiseptic.

Tomorrow—A measure Of Age

ROCHELLE NEWS

By Arthur T. Guest

Rochelle—Mrs. Lorena P. Guest, widow of Aaron W. Guest, died at her home, 1021 Fourth Avenue, in this city, following a several weeks' illness, Sunday night, Dec. 3, 1933, at 8 o'clock. She was 62 years of age.

The deceased received her education at Jennings' Seminary at Aurora, Ill., and for a number of years was a teacher in the Rochelle public schools.

She was united in marriage to Aaron W. Guest on Oct. 5, 1883. Mr. Guest died on Nov. 15, 1933. Mrs. Guest's mother died in 1927, and her father, the late Charles Pratt, in 1925. Until her health failed she was active in the Friendly Society in Rochelle.

Surviving are a brother, Harry A. Pratt, of Thief River Falls, Minn.; a son, Arthur T. Guest, of Rochelle; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Elsie M. Wagner of Rochelle; Mrs. George W. Guest, of Rochelle; and a cousin, J. D. Farr, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

There have been enough Federal Land Bank Loans approved to pay a dividend at the Rochelle Trust & Savings Bank as soon as the cash from these loans is turned over to the bank. These loans have been approved some time but receiving the actual cash seems to be a long drawn out affair. It is expected by the first of the year a substantial dividend can be paid to depositors which will be a great help to this community.

At present there is a large sum in the hands of the receiver which has been collected but it can not be paid out in the form of dividends until a final decision is reached regarding preferred claims. The case is now before the Appellate Court and will probably be heard at the next term of court.

A cantata, "Glad Tidings of Great Joy" will be presented Dec. 21 at the high school auditorium by Mrs. Orva Wright. This program will be given by members of the Junior high school enrolled

MAIL HOLIDAY PARCELS, CARDS SOON IS ADVICE

Postmaster Moyer's Suggestions For Local Patrons

Mail early for delivery before Christmas day and register or insure valuable mail was advice issued today by Postmaster John E. Moyer to patrons of the local post-office.

During the holiday period the volume of mail increases nearly 200 per cent and it is almost a physical impossibility to handle the great mass of letters and packages efficiently, says Postmaster Moyer. He urges Dixon residents to do their Christmas shopping early so that they can mail their gifts, greetings and letters at least a week or ten days before Christmas.

Wrap and pack packages securely; use strong paper and heavy twine. The Postmaster further advises. Articles easily broken or crushed must be securely wrapped and padded or boxed. Use liberal quantities of excelsior or similar material. All articles easily broken or damaged must be plainly marked "fragile."

Parcels containing perishable articles should be marked "perishable" and packed in a suitable container, according to contents. No parcel more than 100 inches in length and girth and exceeding 70 pounds in weight can be mailed by parcel post.

Postmaster Moyer states that use of a special delivery stamp will assure delivery on Christmas Day if mailed at the proper time. When ordinary delivery stamps are used instead of special delivery stamps, senders of packages are advised to write the words "special delivery" on the package.

Do not mail Christmas greeting cards in red, green or other dark colored envelopes, or in very small envelopes. Cards mailed in these envelopes will be accepted but the address is hard to read on dark colored backgrounds, postal officials declare.

Sugar beets are a great crop-yield stimulator; after ground has been used for them, other crops are found to increase 50 to 80 per cent in tonnage.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

Washington—The contention of General MacArthur, chief of staff, that the enlisted strength of the regular army should be increased from 119,000 to 165,000 men will be opposed, in stubborn fashion if it is put up to Congress to decide.

A gentleman from Mississippi, a member of the House, is all set for the General.

He is Ross Collins, chairman of the sub-committee of the Appropriations committee—the House body which controls the purse strings of the War Department.

Collins doesn't claim to be a soldier. He believes, however, that he knows something about the army—knowledge "picked up by hard work and the exercise of ordinary common sense," as he expresses it.

The Mississippi long has been an advocate of motorization, and mechanization of the nation's military establishment. It is his contention that military conservatism too long has been allowed to retain masses of what he describes as "slow-moving, slow-shooting, expensively massed troops."

HE'S FOR MODERNITY

He has been loud in his complaint that of the money made available to the War Department by Congress to maintain the military establishment, comparatively little goes for modern equipment.

"When we realize," he says, "that the large percentage of the money appropriated is for personnel to almost the total neglect of mechanized equipment; when we see money used on transient training of high school boys, drill ground maneuvers, and single-shot rifles, our belief is somewhat shaken in the good judgment of our general staff."

For these reasons he has no sympathy with General MacArthur's desire to increase the size of the regular army. He would use the money necessary to care for the increased personnel in further mechanization of what we now have.

"The General," he declares, "would mix antique methods with modern means of warfare. It can't be done successfully."

HANDY WITH AMMUNITION

Collins, a sandy-haired, robust man who speaks with a pronounced southern accent has incurred the enmity of many in the Army for his attitude. His efforts to remove older Army officers from the active list to make way for younger men have brought him much criticism.

His enthusiasm over a mechanized military establishment for this country knows no bounds. His office abounds with pictures and drawings of the latest war machines. As he talks he jumps from one to another for illustration. And he'll argue his side with the highest of 'em.

PILLAR OF SALT

By L. L. R.

First it was the reforestation program, and now the newspapers tell us that the number of fleas in the world is decreasing yearly. And they used to say that it was the unfortunate fellow who led the dog's life.

Observations—By his recent pictures, the President evidently has a new hat. And, judging from his radio programs, Eddie Cantor has decided to drop the hard g's in his ing's.

Why do we laugh at others' misfortunes? The funniest thing I can remember at the moment happened to be a poor fellow at Lakeside Park in Akron. There was a scrub baseball game in progress, and the victim was peacefully sleeping with his straw hat over his face. A high fly was batted out, and it landed right in the middle of the hat. The rib-cracker was when the no longer sleeping man sat up quickly with his hand over his eye, and yelled "Hey!"

Could the well known freedom of the press make any connection between bachelorhood and newspaper work?

The movies offer marvelous entertainment. But couldn't the producers (just once in a while) make a picture that wouldn't send the children scotching under the seats for fear of being pulled limb from limb?

A great banker: Winthrop W. Aldrich, president of the Chase National Bank of New York City because he recognized the duties of a banker, as evidenced in his recent statements before the U. S. senate stock market committee.

Some of the big newspapers refuse to banner the fight against the national plague. They cry "freedom of the press," while their readers smilingly look back about sixteen years (when there was a catastrophe no worse) to the storied about babies run through with swords of the enemy.

If Al Smith keeps striking, his nickname, "The Happy Warrior," might well be changed to "The Rappy Warrior."

If you have something to sell and are in a big hurry to sell it, let the classified advertising department of The Dixon Telegraph prove its ability as a speedy and efficient sales medium.

The longest non-stop air mail route in the United States is 542 miles long and lies wholly in the state of Texas.

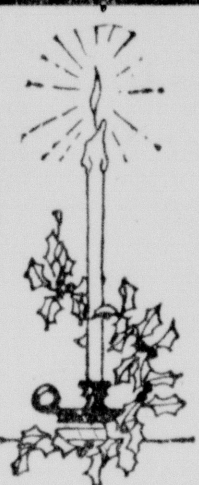

Farmers Arm to Break Strike

Armed with guns and clubs, and an auto crank handle, these Iowa farmers are waiting to escort trucks through picket lines near Sioux City. They are members of the new "law and order league" formed by farmers unsympathetic with the midwest strike to help get produce and livestock through to market.

Well advertised quality goods make satisfied customers and increase business.

A number of bills passed by the last session of Congress seem something like the scorpion in that they carry stings in their tails. They don't work the way it is thought they would and make things worse instead of better.

You should never buy a product of foreign manufacture when you can procure a home product of equal merit, price and quality.

Just a little consideration by those on wheels for those on foot, and vice versa, would put an end to a great deal of the present traffic troubles in our towns.

NATION, STATES SEEK METHOD TO CONTROL LIQUOR

provisions were being used until Congress could enact necessary laws.

Suppliers Under Codes
Distillers, brewers and importers already were under codes; hearings had just been held on one for the rectifiers and blenders.

Numerous attempts were being made to keep bootleggers from profiting by the expected increased demand. Joseph H. Choate, Jr., who is head of the new Federal Alcohol Control Administration, in one of his first orders tried to speed legitimate supplies.

The temporary liquor import committee, which he heads, continued issuing permits for immediate importation of American-type bourbon and rye whiskey suitable for blending. The committee did not say how much of that liquor would be admitted, but officials estimated Canada had nearly 20-

000,000 gallons which could be imported into the United States.

Seek Trade Pacts
Negotiations continued with other countries for trade pacts whereby their spirits and wines might be exchanged for American farm surpluses.

These were but a few of the problems that occupied Washington officials. The states had as many, or more. And from leading prohibitionists came warnings that the fight was not over yet.

O. G. Christgau, executive assistant to the Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, warned that "so long as the liquor traffic exists the battle against this intolerable evil will go on."

Edwin E. Blake, National Secretary of the Prohibition Party, forecast that national prohibition will return; Dr. Howard Hyde Russell, Anti-Saloon League founder, also promised a fight for regulatory legislation.

Regulation Problems
It was this regulatory problem that caused most difficulty in the states. Those in which theoretically at least, the sale of spirits became legal with repeal were Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Colorado, Arizona, California, Washington, Louisiana, New York, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, New Jersey, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon, Maryland, Montana and Rhode Island.

In Colorado, for instance, issuance of the first retail liquor licenses was postponed until today; Wisconsin's first sales were limited; Rhode Island quickly exhausted its immediate supply; permit difficulties hindered the flow in Indiana; the Washington state legislature still wrestled with the problem as did that in Oregon; bars were bolted and polished in Massachusetts while sales permits were issued slowly.

Ohio, after ratifying the amendment yesterday, remained arid because of state law needing legislative action. Pennsylvania's dry Governor, Gifford Pinchot, was charged with controlling his state's regulatory machinery, after the state convention approved the repealing 21st Amendment.

Utah Without Beer
Utah, number 36 in the state line-up, can't even have 3.2 beer until January 1, while its legislature must repeal the state law before harder liquors become legal.

In New York, John Barleycorn came back—but he had restraint and dignity; in California he was just about as well-behaved; in New Jersey, one of the wettest of the wet states, Governor Moore last night left the state officially dry when he vetoed the liquor control bill passed by the legislature. The legislature, however, passed the measure over the veto.

Nevada, openly wet, was noisy but orderly; the Carolinas, the only states so far to reject repeal, took prohibition's death without notice; Kentuckians, hailing from one of the biggest liquor producing states, had laws keeping their state dry until at least the latter part of 1935.

Two Proclamations
Little ceremony marked Washington's official promulgation of repeal President Roosevelt and William Phillips, Acting Secretary of State, simply signing the necessary proclamations. That by the President was necessary to end, on January and July 1, about $212,000,000 various taxes which are to be repealed by liquor levies.

And immediately governmental realignments were ordered to make the changes needed because a constitutional amendment was repealed for the first time in the history of the republic.

Among other things, the prohibition unit of the Justice Department became the "alcohol beverage unit"; the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol was merged with the Internal Revenue Bureau. The 1,200 prohibition agents in the field will, for the time being, help enforce the revenue laws in wet states and aid local officials in enforcing the laws in those that remain dry.

Roosevelt's proclamation of repeal ended taxes which the Treasury figured would bring in around $212,000,000 a year.

Special Liquor Taxes
These, however, are to be replaced by special taxes on now legalized liquor. The new levies will be decided upon after joint hearings shortly by the House Ways and Means and Senate Finance committees.

Various liquor taxes, and duties, have been proposed. The law now calls for payment of $1.10 on each gallon of hard liquor. That will be raised, to somewhere around $2.20 to $3. Individual rates for the numerous grades of other beverages will be changed.

The announced objective for all the liquor taxes will be to make them high enough to bring needed revenue but not so high that liquor can continue to be bootlegged by men who sell it without paying the tax.

The repealed taxes were included in the recovery act for reemployment and relief financing. The act specified dates.

These Taxes Out
Thus, on January 1, the Federal gasoline tax will be reduced from 1½ to 1 cent a gallon; the levy of 5 per cent assessed the recipient of dividends will not apply to dividends he receives after January 1; after July 1, 1934, domestic corporations no longer will be required to pay a $1 tax on every $1,000 of adjusted declared value of their capital stock; corporations will cease to be required to pay a 5 per cent excess-income levy on net income over 12½ per cent of the adjusted declared value of their capital stock.

The last suspension becomes effective at the end of the present tax-year of the individual corporation.

Freddie Miller
A Busy Champion
Chicago, Dec. 6—(AP)—Freddie Miller, the National Boxing Association's featherweight champion, and just about the busiest of current titleholders, will meet Paul Dazzo, young Chicago Italian, in a ten-round over-weight bout tonight at the Arcadia Garden.

The bout will be at 130 pounds, and Dazzo, who is quite a slugger on occasions, hopes to earn a try at Miller's title. The Cincinnati southpaw, however, ranks as the choice. Since winning the title from Tommy Paul at the Chicago Stadium last January, Miller has successfully defended his crown four times, and engaged in thirteen non-title bouts.

FIELDING MARKS OF NATIONAL ARE PUBLISHED TODAY

Braves Best Fielders: Three Cubs are Ranking Individuals

New York, Dec. 6—(AP)—Although the Boston Braves set up a new club fielding record for the National League during the 1933 season, they captured only one of the nine individual titles.

The Braves wound up with a field mark of .978, the official averages reveal, two points higher than the old record the same club had hung up in 1932.

Frank Hogan was the only Brave, however, to win individual honors. He wound up with an average of .997 to lead the catchers. The Cubs won three of these berths, Manager Charley Grimm leading the first basemen at .996, Elwood English the third sackers at .973, and Lon Warneke the pitchers at 1.000. Twenty fingers turned in perfect records but Warneke accepted the most chances, 80.

The individual winners were: Second base, Hughey Critz, New York, .981; Shortstop, Leo Durocher, St. Louis, .960; Right field, Harry Rice, Cincinnati, .991; Center field, George Davis, New York, .988; and Left field, Freddy Lindstrom, Pittsburgh, .987.

Billy Herman, second baseman of the Cubs, set up two new records during the season, making 496 put-outs against the mark of 459, Bill Sweeney of Boston set in 1912, and making 11 put-outs in a single game. Jimmy Wilson, St. Louis Cardinal catcher now a member of the Phillies, hung up another record when he was credited with 18 putouts in the game in which Dixie Dean, Cardinal pitcher, struck out 17 Cubs. The old record of 17 putouts was held by Hank Deberry, Dazzy Vance's old bat-mate at Brooklyn, in 1923.

Herman Kept Busy
Herman not only set up his two records but also had the most chances among second basemen with 1023, figured in the most double plays, 114, and committed the most errors, 45.

Baxter Jordan of Boston had the most chances among first basemen while Don Hurst of the Phillies figured in the most doubles plays, 132, made the most assists, 114 and the most errors, 23.

Among the third basemen, Pie Traynor of Pittsburgh had the most chances, 503 and made the most errors, 27, while Joe Stripp of Brooklyn and Johnny Vergez of New York were involved in the most double plays, 17.

Dick Bartell's 919 total chances led the shortstops and the Philadelphia also led in double plays with 100 while Floyd (Army) Vaughan of Pittsburgh was charged with the most errors, 46.

Among the outfielders, Chick Fullis of the Phillies had the most chances, 435; Chuck Klein, also of the Phillies, the most assists, 21; Joe Moore of New York the most double plays, six; and George Watkins of the Cardinals, the most errors, 13.

Gus Mancuso of the Giants led the catchers in total chances with 682; in double plays, 16; in errors, 19; and in passed balls, 12.

Carl Hubbell had the greatest number of chances among the pitchers, 199; while Lon Warneke of the Cubs was in the most double plays, 7, and Wild Bill Hallahan of the Cardinals was charged with the most errors, six.

Jess Willard Is Hailed Into Court

Los Angeles, Dec. 6—(AP)—Convicted on a charge of battery, Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, will be sentenced Saturday in Municipal Court.

The charge grew out of a fight Willard is alleged to have had with Henry Legrego, truck driver and his father, Henry Legrego, Sr., as the result of a collision between Willard's automobile and a truck driven by the son.

Witnesses for the prosecution testified Willard was under the influence of liquor at the time of the accident. Willard denied the charge.

CHICAGO GAVE LIQUOR JOYOUS WELCOME BACK

Stocks Are Depleted, Say Bar Tenders, By Celebrants

Chicago, Dec. 6—(AP)—Gay and joyous crowds that surged through Chicago's loop in carnival spirit gave legal liquor an all night welcome and then went home to awaken today with that "morning after" headache.

Celebrants were on hand outside some of the famous old bars of other days early in the afternoon ready to cross the threshold the moment word was flashed from Utah that prohibition repeal had been ratified.

And as the afternoon wore into evening and evening into night, their numbers increased until it resembled a New Year's Eve celebration. It was the first time many had ever imbibed of anything but illegal liquor and from the way in which stocks were depleted they apparently liked it.

At one hotel the bartender who presided over its bar the night it closed 14 years ago was back on the job giving the "boys and girls" of 1933 a great big hand.

Needed Recipe Books
In others there was a noticeable slowness of service due to the necessity of dispensers of cocktails and other fancy drinks to refer to recipes constantly. But the customers were good natured about it. Some served the customer with his glass and a decanter as in the days of old, while in others the glasses were pushed over the bar already filled.

That's how the Chicago public took the return of liquor. Here's what Edward (Spike) O'Donnell, 43, reputed former beer baron, had to say:

"I think prohibition's death will give the workin' guy a chance to get his five-cent beer in a tavern where he can take his family. And I'm for it. It also will eliminate the tax burden for the future generation."

Basketball Loop Starts This Eve

The Dixon Industrial Basketball League will open its schedule this evening at 7:30 at the high school gymnasium. The league is composed of five teams and four of these will be seen in action on the floor tonight. Officials for both games have been selected from the fifth team which is not playing. This plan has been adopted for the season. Bill Hansen and Lyle Fordham will officiate.

The Dixon Battery Shop will oppose the Illinois Northern Utilities company in the opening game at 7:30. This will be followed by the game in which Ashton will test out the strength of the Beier Loafers at 8:30. Paul Nicolosi is the latest acquisition to the Beier camp.

CONGRESSMAN IS MAIN SPEAKER AT ENCAMPMENT HERE

Allen To Address Annual Turkey Dinner of Odd Fellows

Nachusa Encampment, No. 115, will observe the annual turkey banquet Saturday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall, at which time several distinguished guests will be present and participate in the excellent program which has been arranged for the evening. The Encampment has sponsored the annual turkey dinners for several years, and each year these events have attracted increasing delegations from the eighth district, of which Nachusa Encampment is a member.

Congressman Leo Allen of Galena will be one of the outstanding guests of honor on this occasion, and he will be heard in an extemporaneous talk which will be one of the features of the program. Congressman Allen is in great demand throughout the district during his holiday vacation at his home in Galena, and the local committee is gratified at his acceptance of their invitation to attend this function. He will accompany the delegation from his home city where he is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge.

Leslie L. Urich, Grand Patriarch of Batavia, Grand Scribe Huntinton James of Kankakee and Deputy Grand Master Edward E. Hunt, of Fulton have accepted invitations to be present and will be heard during the program. Grand Scribe James has attended several of the former events as the guest of Nachusa Encampment. Delegations from other lodges in the district have made reservations for this event and the prospect is for the largest attendance in years. The committee in charge have arranged an excellent program which will follow the sumptuous banquet and a full evening of entertainment is assured all Odd Fellows and their ladies attending.

FORGOTTEN MAN STILL IN SAME SITUATION NOW

Republican Committee Calls Attention to Recent Epithets

Washington, Dec. 5.—(AP)—Contending the Roosevelt administration is attempting to create a "dictatorship" in time of "profound peace," the Republican National Committee in its second pamphlet in a month today said the President and his cohorts are replying to critics within their own party with nothing but "epithets."
"It is the 'forgotten man' of 1932
Rooseveltian oratory who complains that he still is in that category," it said.
"The pamphlet's cover bore no title, but carried in bold black type the following 'epithets' from recent utterances of the President, Hugh S. Johnson, Speaker Rainey, and Donald R. Richberg, NRA counsel: 'Tories,' 'Chiselers,'
'Dead Cats,' 'Witch Doctors,'
'Bank Wreckers,' 'Traitors.'"

Quoted Jackson, T. R.
After quoting Andrew Jackson and Theodore Roosevelt on the right to criticize official acts, the publication said: "No administration in the history of the United States, having a task to perform, has been given as unanimous support by the American people as the Roosevelt administration."

Declaring the administration's requests had been granted by Congress fully and without complaint, the pamphlet asserted Roosevelt had been entrusted with more power "than was given Lincoln to save the Union or Wilson to wage the World War."

"A month or six weeks ago,"
it said, "there began to be criticism of the policies of the administration. It was pointed out in the columns of the public press that the President's recovery program was not working, because it was not workable; that many of the policies ran contrary to fundamental economic laws, sound business practices, plain common sense and particularly to the spirit of American institutions and the convictions and traditions of the American people."

From Democrats
"That criticism did not originate with partisan opponents of the President. It came from outstanding members of the Democratic party. It found virile expression in the editorial columns of staunch Democratic newspapers."

The Republican committee contended the public objects to receiving orders from "some bureaucratic top sergeant" for "all private enterprise" to do "squad right" and "squad left."
Simultaneous with this second committee attack upon the administration, Senator Felt of Ohio, assistant Republican leader of the Senate, told newspapermen the Roosevelt program could not succeed because it was based entirely on relief "at the expense of permanent recovery."

Everyday Religion

DO YOU AGREE?
By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton
The formula of truth is fact plus faith, minus fear, multiplied by hope, divided by love.

We waste a lot of precious time looking for truth in the muddy mirror of prejudice.

A platitude is a tabloid truth, a cheap name for wisdom which it cost the race time and tragedy to learn.

The movie-mind is bad enough,
but what kind of mind will result from skimming a book and listening to the radio at the same time?

People are of two sorts—those who want to be like others, and those who want to be different.

The secret of wisdom, as of art, lies in the power to confine an eternal idea within right limits.

Youth goes; but childhood need never be lost unless we let something fresh, free, humble and wise die within us.

Many of the blunders of life are due to the confusion of pleasure with happiness. Happiness often begins where pleasure leaves off.

When some of our feelings feel how the rest of our feelings feel, we are in danger of developing a complex.

Liberty, if it is real, is not the right to do as we like, but to like what we ought to do.

Knowledge does not take the place of character; it reinforces it.
We are under "the moral obligation to be intelligent."

Almost any fault can become a virtue, and any virtue can become a fault—if it is pushed too far.

There may be no such thing as happiness, but just a lot of happiness—and each one is different.

They always say that life is short, but living long may mean little more than outliving others.

Truth is love in thought; beauty is love in expression; goodness is love in action.

(Copyright, 1933, by the

"LIFE IS LIKE THAT."

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton
"When my money went my wife went too," a reader in Detroit writes me. "No longer able to make a living, I was not needed. It's a queer world, and we must take it as it is. Just the same it is rather rough, but life, I guess, is like that."

Yes sometimes it is. Especially in these tired, sad, mad years when anything may happen, when the snap and people crack up and go all to pieces. But life any time is a mixture, a medley of all sorts of things, good and ill, white, black and dull drab grey.

On the night when Jesus was arrested in the Garden of Gethsemane, his friends forsook him and fled.

Later in the night, a jealous political priesthood, fearing the loss of its own prestige, arranged a judicial murder. Life can be like that.
The next day a young man, still in his thirties, who had chosen to die rather than betray His faith and vision, was taken by a squad of soldiers outside the city gate, and crucified. As they drove the nails through the palms of his hands, He said, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." Life can be like that, too!

If we say that nature is the cyclone that devastates the drought that starves, the cold that freezes, the heat that withers, and the germ that kills, it is all true. But that is not the whole story. Nature is also the rain that refreshes, the sea that drifts and sings, the grass that rests the eye, the mountain that lifts the spirit.

Just so, life has its rough edges that hurt, but also its radiant hours that heal its experiences, of whatever kind, are the raw stuff which we must take and shape into forms of grace and truth. It is up to us, whether it is a masterpiece, a mixture, or a mess.

The secret of life—the only secret worth knowing—is to find in God, and in our own unconquerable souls, that which will enable us to endure and master anything that life or death can do to us.

It can be done, and to learn that secret is why we are here.

A FLOWERET

A floweret blooms its life away
Bestowing beauty bright by day;
And through the lonely length of night
It silently diffuses light.

The tempests beat; the rains may pour;
And still the floweret sways the more.
The sun may send its stinging sheen,
But no complaint is heard or seen.

No matter if the skies are dark,
The thunders roll, the lightnings spark;
The floweret tosses with the storm,
And smiles as breezes blow its form.
Oh, could all our lives be thus,

And molded to forget to fuss,
And fume, and fret, and grouch along,
But every day could be a song.

The Smallest Church

There is a little church in Louisiana, called Madonna chapel, which accommodates only one person at a time. The church, battered, unpainted and weather-beaten, stands in a field between Pleasant and Bayou Gouls, ten miles from the town of Plaquemine. It is still used for worship. Legend says that, more than 30 years ago, an Italian living in that section had a very sick wife. He prayed for her recovery, promising a shrine if his prayers were answered. The wife got well and so he built the tiny church.

COLLEGE GAMES DREW INCREASED CROWDS IN 1933

Some Schools Almost Doubled Figures Of Last Fall

New York, Dec. 6.—(AP)—College football finally has turned the corner in a big way, on the basis of attendance figures compiled today by The Associated Press, and revealed much of the popularity as well as financial ground lost during the past three years.

The tabulation for 1933, covering all sections of the country, reveals a rising tide of turnstile activity exceeding the most optimistic expectations. It shows that 40 out of 53 colleges and universities registered substantial gains over 1932, ranging in a few instances as high as 100 per cent. Records for attendance were broken in the Big Ten, the Big Six and Rocky Mountain Conferences. Last year there was a general decline of 15 per cent.

Fordham and Princeton in the east; Michigan, Iowa, Ohio State, Minnesota and Nebraska in the midwest; Tennessee in the south; Denver in the Rocky Mountain Conference; St. Mary's, Stanford and Southern California on the Pacific coast, showed the biggest increases over 1932. Their gains ranged from 33 1/3 to more than 100 per cent.

Fordham's first season under Jimmy Crowley was marked by more than doubled attendance. St. Mary's, which beat Fordham before a capacity crowd in New York, showed the next best record by jumping its attendance from 194,000 for eight games last year to more than 379,000 for nine games this season. Iowa more than doubled its home attendance.

Southern California, playing most of its games in the huge Olympic Stadium, attracted more cash customers than any other team. The Trojans played ten games before 563,000 spectators, an increase of nearly 90,000 over last year's total for nine games. They have one more game to play this Saturday so that the 600,000 mark in attendance for one team may be passed for the first time in football history.

Navy Leads East
Navy was in front in the east with an estimated 350,000 turnout for its complete schedule. Notre Dame topped the list again in the middle west with an aggregate of 382,000 but this is a decline from last year's figure of 441,000. Army, with a total of 322,700 was the only other team on the list to pass the 300,000 mark in aggregate attendance.

The season's biggest single game attendance, 93,509 for the Michigan-Ohio State contest at Ann Arbor, set a new high mark for the Big Ten. Other capacity or near capacity turnouts were 90,000 for Southern California-Stanford at Los Angeles, 79,000 for Army-Navy at Philadelphia and 76,000 for Army-Notre Dame at New York.

The Kansas-Nebraska game attracted 31,000, biggest crowd in the

The UNKNOWN BLOND

By Laura LOW BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Who killed TRACY KING, or, chieftain leader found dead in his hotel apartment?
DAVID BANNISTER, author, former newspaper reporter, narrows down the suspects.
Among the suspects are a "unknown blond" who visited King shortly before his death; HERMAN SCHULACH, in jail and declaring his innocence, who wrote King a threatening letter; JOE PARROTT, King's former vaudeville partner, with whom he had had trouble; MELVINA HOLLISTER, middle-aged spinster who had quarreled with King after his death; and a girl who was the blond suspect in arrested. Bannister talks to her, but she refuses to tell where she came from or anything about herself.

DENISE LANG, King's fiancée, identifies her as the girl who was talking to King the day before his death. The girl admits going to King's apartment to get some letters, but denies any knowledge of the murder.

Now Bannister encounters MATTHEW HOLLISTER.

CHAPTER XXIV

AFTERWARD Bannister was never quite sure what prompted him. He had a premonition—an instinctive warning of some sort—that what this little, insignificant looking man had to say might be important. Extremely important.

He looked about for a place where they might talk without interruption and saw behind the King a restaurant. It was a restaurant where he had eaten once or twice—a place that was small, not overly well patronized and clean. At this time of day it was sure to be almost deserted.

Bannister turned and said, "Let's go some where where we can talk. How about this place?"

Matthew Hollister shook his head. "Oh no," he protested. "That's a restaurant. I had lunch a long while ago. I couldn't eat anything now."

Bannister urged him forward. "Then have something to drink," he said. "Any how, I'm hungry. Come and talk to me while I eat."

Inside the restaurant they found places at a small table beside the wall.

A girl in a green dress and white apron approached to take the order. "Cheese sandwich on rye for me," Bannister instructed her. He looked across at Hollister. "What about you? Can't I persuade you to have at least a sandwich? And what will you have to drink?"

The little man's eyes brightened. It was obvious that this was an invitation. He looked about the room and some of the meekness that characterized him seemed to disappear.

"I'd—," He hesitated, then went on more boldly, "I'd like a beer."

"Make it two," Bannister told the waitress. "Wait a minute—what kind do you have?"

The waitress told him and Bannister made a selection. Matthew Hollister, without much urging, was persuaded to have a sandwich also.

The girl disappeared and a few minutes later was back, placing the food before them and pouring the amber liquid into glasses topped with snowy foam.

Hollister's pleasure was evident. He raised the glass to his lips and drank deeply. "My!" he said with a sigh of satisfaction, "that's good beer!"

It wasn't, particularly, but Bannister wanted to encourage his guest. "I'm glad you like it," he said, smiling.

Among the few headlines reported in attendance, besides Notre Dame, were those at New York University, Pennsylvania, Northwestern, Wisconsin, Vanderbilt, Texas, Virginia Tech.

Comparative figures on attendance for 1933 and 1932 include the following:

SOMEHOW, holding his glass and looking so childishly pleased, Matthew Hollister was more pathetic than ever. The pale eyes behind the spectacles became confiding. "You know," he said, "I don't drink beer often. Melvina doesn't like it. She's as much against beer as she is against whisky and hard liquor. 'Strong drink' is what she calls them and they're all the same to her. Of course, in a way she's right. I don't hold that a man should make a slave of himself to alcohol. No sir! But a glass of beer now and then—well, I don't see that it does much harm and it certainly tastes mighty good! Mighty good!"

Once more he raised the glass to his lips and drank. Bannister remembered what Mrs. Kennebec had said about Melvina Hollister managing her own and her brother's joint income. Was it possible Melvina's hold on the purse strings was so close that a 10-cent glass of beer was, for her brother, a rare treat? It didn't seem possible.

Matthew was enjoying his beer nevertheless. He set the glass down, rested his arms on the table, and leaned toward Bannister. "I'm glad I met you this afternoon, Mr. Bannister," he said. "There are some things I want to talk to you about. Are you a detective?"

Bannister hastened to explain that, strictly speaking, he was not. He was working on the King murder case, however, making a sort of private investigation.

The explanation seemed to satisfy Hollister completely. "That's all I wanted to know," he said. "You're the man I want to talk to!"

"Is it something about the King case?" Bannister asked.

"Yes and no," said Matthew Hollister. "It may be, and then again it may be mistaken. It's about my sister, Melvina, really."

Bannister was suddenly interested. "Your sister?" he repeated.

"The little man nodded. 'I think Melvina knows something she's keeping to herself. And it isn't natural for her to be close-mouthed. No sir! If Melvina thinks anything she says it right out, so nobody can misunderstand her.'"

"What makes you think she's keeping something to herself now?" Bannister asked.

"I'll tell you," Matthew Hollister said. "I'll tell you all about it. It's been worrying me a heap these last few days and I'll be glad to know what you think of it."

He took a bite of his sandwich, then went on. "Melvina told you she was visiting my cousin the night that young fellow was killed upstairs. Well, she was. But she got back 15 minutes later than she told you. It was 9:45 when she came in the apartment. I know because I had the radio going and the 'Saxophone Sizzlers' had just begun their program. I had to turn it off—"

He looked at Bannister apologetically. "I listen to the 'Saxophone Sizzlers' when I'm alone," he went on. "Melvina doesn't like them."

"But it wasn't just that Melvina came in late that night. There's something else. To tell the truth, I think she'd seen something."

Hollister held out his hand. "Goodbye, Mr. Bannister," he said. "I'm certainly glad I met you. Maybe I've been worrying over something that doesn't amount to anything but I'm glad I told you about it just the same. I feel better now. Some time when you're out in our neighborhood drop in to see us. I'd certainly like to see you again."

Bannister assured him he would do that. He glanced at his watch and saw that it was almost five and turned to make his way back to central police headquarters.

It was a five-minute walk and Bannister was particularly anxious to see McNeal. He walked down Sixth street, remembered an alley he could cut through, thereby saving time. The alley was dark but Bannister did not think of that. Puzzling over the story Matthew Hollister had just told him, wondering what to make of it, he turned into the alley.

Bannister could not keep the excitement from his voice. "You mean—?"

Suddenly Hollister was ill at ease. "It isn't anything I can be positive about," he said. "It's just—well, she didn't act natural. And she hasn't acted natural since. Melvina came in all flustered and excited that night. She didn't even notice that the 'Saxophone Sizzlers' program was on. Course I turned it off right away but that's awful unlike her!"

"When I asked what was the matter she said 'Nothing.' Just 'Nothing' like that. And then she wanted to know if I'd heard home all the time and if I'd heard anything. I told her I hadn't."

"She went into her bedroom and shut the door and didn't come out again. Along about 10:30 I went to bed myself. I called through the door and asked Melvina if she wanted anything. She said no, to go to bed."

REPEAL OFFERS AN INVESTMENT FOR DIXONITES

Rock River Distillery Stock Approved by Nation, State

Conrad Dyke, of the Rock River Distillery, Inc., reports having received word from the investment house handling the distribution of their stock, that several thousand shares of stock were sold last week, the first week the stock was offered to the public. Several citizens of Dixon have purchased stock, and many have expressed their intention to do so.

That in the signing of the new code for distilleries, some of the requirements were that the distilleries must be organized before November 28, 1933 and also show proof that the plans of the distillery had been made previous to that date. The Rock River distillery, Inc., was incorporated August 15, 1933, and some rehabilitation has already been done.

Not a Promotion Plan
The management of the Rock River Distillery, Inc., wishes to emphatically impress on the minds of the investors that the selling of the stock of the Rock River Distillery, Inc., is not a promotion plan. The offering of the stock is in compliance with the new federal securities law, and in addition the issue is approved by the securities commission of the state of Illinois. Proceeds from the sale of the stock are placed in escrow with the Trust Company of Chicago to be released only by the Secretary of State, in such amounts to cover rehabilitation expense, cost of equipment, working capital, etc.

Prospective Earnings
A minimum of only ten cents per gallon profit would create earnings annually of over one dollar per share on the outstanding stock. In the olden days not a great deal of distillery stock was available to the public, due to the fact that most distilleries were family-owned, or closely held by a small group of financiers. In view of the record of earnings of distilleries operating before prohibition, stock of the Rock River Distilleries, Inc., offers an attractive investment opportunity.

Bankers' Representatives Here
Ralph Crossman and A. Richard Nelson, representatives of the investment banking house of Harsin, Roberts & Company are temporarily located in Dixon, and they will be glad to answer any questions relative to the stock offering. They are making their headquarters at the office of the Rock River Distillery, Inc., phone 136.

Miss Adella Helmershausen read an interesting "Christmas Story," describing some of her own personal contacts among the children of the poor in the section of Chicago where some of her teaching years were passed. Mrs. Henry Hicks sang a beautiful solo, "King of Kings," which was much enjoyed. The committee which collected and sent the canned fruit to the MacFarlane children's home at Rockford, reported seventy quarts of fruit and several cans of jelly also that it was gratefully received, and a letter of appreciation was read.

The study topic, "When and Why is a Beverage Intoxicating?" was then taken up and the lesson conducted by Miss Helmershausen. This was most interesting, and brought out conclusively that under the changed conditions of our present and future industrial era, with its tendency for greater speed and more general use of machinery, the term "intoxicating" has a different meaning from that of former years. In the past the common conception of intoxication was of a man so much under the influence of alcohol as to show signs of uncertain gait, or disorderly conduct. But today the question we must consider is not whether the drinker "feels" intoxicated, but, has the alcohol rendered him less capable of performing his work with safety? A man should be considered intoxicated when the alcohol has so affected his brain and nervous system that he cannot carry out work which he could when sober and normal. A beverage is intoxicating when, and because, it contains sufficient alcohol to so affect the drinker, physiologically and psychologically—as to make him liable to harm himself or others.

The toxic narcotic, and habit-forming effects of alcohol used as a beverage were also described, as well as its hereditary tendencies. "The greatest of all evils—would be the re-legalizing of a traffic which can poison the human organism of our people and especially of our youth,—all with the approval and sanction of the U. S. government for revenue."

driven by an Eskimo, and a galaxy of other attractions.

Today comes word from Santa that he will have with him when he arrives six real, live fairies. These fairies are the ones with sleek, myriado-colored wings such as every child has read about in children's books and will serve to confirm the fact in their minds that not only is there a living Santa Claus but that there also are real, live fairies whom Santa has about him at all times to aid him in carrying out his life mission of making others happy.

Santa, in his latest radiogram from his north pole cabin home, says these fairies are very close and dear to him and that he is giving them a place of prominence in his parade.

With Santa's Log Cabin The fairies, Santa's radiogram says, will appear with the log cabin as it goes in the parade procession. Their wings fluttering in the breeze, these fairies present a truly alluring spectacle, Santa declares.

This is the first year that Santa has brought any of his living fairies with him and it no doubt is the first time that those who come to see Santa's spectacle parade shall have seen any.

One of childhood's favorite story book characters is to be along with Santa, today's radiogram says. This is none other than the famous Little Red Riding Hood.

Every child, of course, has read about and looked at pictures of Little Red Riding Hood. Every child knows the story of her adventure with the big bad wolf when she found that villainous character in her grandmother's bed.

There will not be any wolf to harass Little Red Riding Hood when she rides in Santa's parade here, though. Santa has seen to that. Smiling and radiant and serenely secure in the feeling of making those who come to view the parade happy.

Drives Shetland Ponies Little Red Riding Hood is a beautiful girl about six years old. Santa's radiogram says, just the age when children enjoy the companionship of a pretty pet Shetland pony. To please Little Red Riding Hood and to provide an added sensation of delight for the children who come to see the parade, Santa is bringing a team of two Shetland ponies with him for Little Red Riding Hood to drive in the parade.

The Shetland pony team which Little Red Riding Hood is to drive in the parade will be hitched to Little Red Riding Hood's own chariot. Santa, of course, is making arrangements to bring this with him, too. Each of the ponies is to be dressed up with a pom-pom-like plume topping his bristling mane. Pulling the bright chariot with its colorful occupant, this feature promises to add a truly romantic and attractive note to Santa's parade of thrilling spectacles.

The Christmas Pup Sent by Dad to the Kiddies

"Isn't he sweet?" "Isn't he darling?" "Look, mother . . . see the white under his chin! What shall we call him?" Mrs. Wallace reached down and gathered into her lap a somewhat forlorn, big-eyed puppy. He wore a smashing red bow around his neck, and he still bore the tag, "Merry Christmas to the Kids From Dad" dangling from the ribbon. But he cringed a little and trembled, and tried to hide under the kind elbow of Mrs. Wallace.

"See here, children," she began, trying to soothe the little fellow. "I want to tell you something. 'I would like it if I wrapped Susie up in white paper, put a tag around her neck, and sent her off as a present to some one! Wouldn't you hope the people who got her would be kind to her? Would let her sleep? Would give her the proper food? Susie is nothing but a baby; so is this puppy. He's frightened, he misses his mother. And while I know you love him, I want you all to be sure not to tease him; to let him sleep, and to treat him exactly as you would want people to treat little Susie. Love him all you want, but think of his side of the matter.' They all looked a trifle soberly at Susie, who didn't know in the least what to make of it. So she patted the puppy with a fat hand and said, 'Let's call him Pup . . . and love him whole lots!'

"We'll be very careful of Pup, mother, won't we?" chorused the others. "Isn't he darling? Isn't he sweet!"

"I'm going to put him in his basket now," said Mrs. Wallace, "and I don't want one of you to awaken him until he crawls out himself. Then he'll be ready to romp."

Little Susie kissed him softly on his nose.—Beatrice Nordlow.

Christmas Roses Aplenty on Charmayne's Costume

CHARMAYNE ELBERINK, the most popular girl in town, had just received an invitation to the annual Christmas ball and her parents, opposed to dancing, had refused to allow her to accept.

Several weeks elapsed and Christmas Eve, the night of the ball, arrived. Charmayne had just turned on the switch which illuminated the beautiful Christmas tree in the living room when a huge purple box was delivered.

Filled with excitement and expectation, she untied the gorgeous satin bow and out bulged a mass of rich red roses, their perfume almost snatching her breath away. A card was attached. She was afraid to look at it! What if it were not for her? She did look, however, and read these words: "Roses Bring Dreams of You."

Overcome with inspiration, she fancied she was to attend the ball. Hearing the roses, she rushed to her room above. "What could she wear?" Her mother's white satin wedding gown, came the reply. The next moment she had it on and was trimming it with red roses. Roses everywhere! On her dress, in her hair, and even upon her slippers.

Father and mother almost collapsed when they saw her. Had Charmayne suddenly gone mad? Where had the roses come from in the middle of winter?

Before they could recover sufficiently to make any inquiries, the doorbell rang, and the next moment their daughter was crushed—roses and all—in the arms of the smiling Chester Graham, who shouted, "Merry Christmas! We're off for the ball!"—Alice B. Palmer.

QUEER CUSTOM

IN HEREFORDSHIRE, England, a queer custom was formerly observed. On Christmas Eve the farmer's servants procured a large cake, stuck a pole through it and then fastened it on the horn of an ox, repeating at the same time a certain formula to the effect that their master might have a good crop of corn. The men and boys then collected around the ox; when, if it happened to throw the cake behind it, it belonged to the men; if before, to the boys.

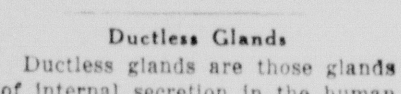

Spain's Christmas Flowers. Scarlet geranium and heliotropes answer in southern Spain the purpose of Christmas holly and mistletoe.

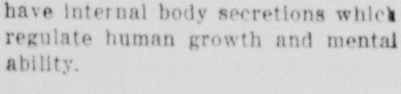

Carols Add Beauty. Christmas carols will, of course, add beauty to the holiday season. Also they will bring about an increase in communal singing.

Christmas Memories. Christmas customs, Christmas odors, Christmas weather, Christmas decorations, Christmas cheer, all go together to make memories.

Ductless Glands. Ductless glands are those glands of internal secretion in the human body. There are thought to be about a dozen of them, the more important of which are the thyroid, adrenal and sex glands. All of these glands have internal body secretions which regulate human growth and mental ability.

It is your duty to carry Accidents Insurance. If you use an automobile you can protect your family to the amount of $1,000 for 1 year for $1.25.

The Pleasure of Giving and Sharing With Others

WHAT beautiful and happy things are associated with Christmas . . . holly and mistletoe . . . candles shining into the night . . . eager, happy children around the Christmas tree . . . crowds of merry shoppers . . . family reunions . . . and then the greater and bigger things . . . joy in the heart and peace and good will toward all men.

How much of good has blessed the world through the spirit of giving that Christmas awakens in the heart . . . Since the Three Wise Men, led by the light of a gleaming star, brought their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh, and laid them at the feet of the Christ Child, men have been bringing unnumbered gifts of love for the sake of the same Child.

Wherever the message of Christmas has been heard . . . kindness, charity, giving, serving, have followed . . . How much of hope has been reawakened—how much of faith reborn—by the gifts of Christmas . . . Something of magic seems to touch the smallest thing that is done for others at Christmas . . . and how many of these gifts of love there are . . .

We only can dimly guess at their multitude . . . and at the hours of happiness and joy they have brought to mankind through the ages . . . But there is One who keeps count of them all . . . and One who came down to show us that the greatest happiness and peace comes to us—not through self-indulgence or ease—but from giving and sharing with others.—Katherine Edelman.

Granny Well Remembers a Kiss Under Mistletoe

"IT WAS snowing just like this," said Granny, reminiscently, as the girls, Babs and Charlotte, trimmed the tree.

"When what, Granny?" Babs asked.

"Dear me, child, did I say that aloud? I was remembering my first kiss—long years ago. Under the mistletoe, it was."

"Tell us about it, Granny," begged the girls, and stopped working to listen.

"Your grandfather was a good looking youth, in those days, and I was a pretty pert lass," she began. "That particular Christmas Eve I was helping decorate the tree at the church—not many people had Christmas trees at home in those days, and the only decorations were cut papers, candles, and such goodies as fruits, candies and gingerbread men."

"I was busy cutting out stars and he was hanging them on the tree and we were talking of all the silly romantic dreams boys and girls do talk about. Somehow he hung a piece of mistletoe over my head and then—my, what romps I made about it! Girls were different then. 'He kissed you?' gasped Charlotte.

"Yes."

"And then," said Babs, "you got married?"

"Married? Dear no, child," said Granny. "We didn't marry, but our children did. That was your other grandfather."—Helen Galsford.

CHRISTMAS TIES

"So Babs invented a Christmas tie that is making millions?"

"Yes. One side is for the wife's taste and the other for the husband's."

Biblical Dates

Although students of biblical chronology have gone far toward determining the actual date of Good Friday, it is unlikely that the real date of the original Christmas day will ever be determined. We may be reasonably certain, however, says Tit-Bits Magazine, that it was not December 25, since that date occurs at the height of the rainy Judean season, when shepherds would certainly not be watching their flocks by night. In the early days of Christianity the feast was kept up at various dates in January, April and May, and it was not until the fifth century that December 25 was agreed upon, probably from a desire to supplant the Saturnalia, from which pagan festival, however, several of our Christmas customs originated.

Society Style Note

MISS EMILY DAVIE, daughter of Mrs. Russel E. Sard, seen recently at Far Hill. Mickey In A New Role

DELIGHTED CHILDREN will clamor for this new Mickey Mouse underwear, and mothers will welcome it because it is made of chardonize, the soft, dull-lustre material which has such long-wearing qualities and will not lose either its strength or its lustre no matter how often it is washed. The tiny figure of Mickey is stamped on each garment.

Crochet and Knit In Cotton

THIS BRIEF SWEATER, knitted in red cotton, is the perfect complement to its twin, the knitted string cardigan flung so carelessly over the young lady's arm. The under sweater is solid red, high around the neck and tight around the waist, with short sleeves to make the costume more comfortable when worn indoors and less bulky when the two sweaters are worn together. The hat, crocheted in the same red cotton as the brief sweater, is crowned by a cotton pom-pom.

All Like Hymn-Tunes at Glorious Christmas Time

"THIS Christmas stuff gets my goat," growled a man in a fishing dory coming home. "All I got out of it is heavy weather, a poor catch, and little money. I don't want to hear no more about it. I'm a-goin' to treat Christmas like any other day. I'm a-goin' out to look at my traps and not act so foolish as others."

"That so?" replied his companion. Ice lay on the spray-hood. Sleet and cold water sloshed around in the boat-bottom. The shore looked dark and uninviting. "Maybe you'll change your mind after you've had a good hot mugup. Guess you're hungry."

The boat went on through the black water. Now a sudden brightness showed on the road high above them, several of them, bobbed in a group. And the wind brought the voices of people singing. Down on the dark water the music drifted—clear, sweet, almost unearthly. "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem."

"Kind of nice," growled out the man who was fed up on Christmas. "Kind of cheers a feller along. I always was mighty fond of that there tune."

The music ceased. The water seemed blacker, colder than ever. "Wish they'd tune up again . . . at Christmas a man likes music, those hymn-tunes . . . well, a feller'd miss 'em, I reckon."

His companion laughed. "You bark awful fierce, don't you? But when it comes right down to it, one little tune sets you all straight with Christmas spirit. You don't hate Christmas. You're just hungry."

Again the music lifted on the night air and floated down to them. "Nothin' like 'em . . . nothin' in all the world like Christmas music to put heart into a feller."

The dory slid into the slip. And two cold fishermen climbed wearily home, the echo of music ringing in their ears.—Martha Banning Thomas.

Live Bird Adorned Their Kitchen Christmas Tree

"IT SEEMED," said Ansel Doane, "kind of mean to leave him there all by his lonesome." "But good land of love," scolded his wife, "what in the world will you do with him?"

Ansel peered anxiously between his fingers into the palm of a great, horny hand. Sitting there, confused, all in a lump of wetness, was a small bird. His eyes darted here and there, but he did not offer to struggle. "I'm goin' to warm him a bit, and let him get his beakin' and feed him, and then see what he wants to do."

Mrs. Doane pretended much scorn, but she went many times to look into the box with cotton her husband had fired. The bird sat, resting, too tired to flutter out.

"It's Christmas Eve, ain't it?" asked Ansel. "It would be a pity if we couldn't help a little mite who doesn't ask nothin' but to live, and take care of itself when it can." He gave him a crumb of bread; softly he stroked the wet wing with his big finger. "I found him a-settin' all hunched up on the church railin'. The rain was a freezin' on his feathers. If we'd help a sailor in trouble . . . why not a wee thing like this? Birds," Ansel frowned, trying to arrange his thoughts, "are just as lovin' to the Lord, as humans, and likely just as important. I admire the spunky little things. I admire 'em a heap."

Later in the evening when the small tree was set up in the corner, the new visitor, being warmed and fed, stepped from his box and flew over to it. There on a branch-top he rocked and gave a few cheerful chirps. "There, what did I tell you?" cried the delighted Ansel. "He's a right smart little feller. And he's wishin' us Merry Christmas or I'm a sinner!"

"Maybe he is," agreed Mrs. Doane. "Kind of cute, having a real bird in a tree in your own kitchen!"

Long Airplane Trip Got Him Home for Christmas

AS I peered through the lighted window into the living room, I saw dad and mother sitting by the fire. They looked pretty lonely, I thought, and I wondered if they were thinking of me—wondering how their son was faring in far-off South America.

I was doubly glad now that I had made such a special effort to come for Christmas. I felt more than repaid for the long, long journey.

Using the old, boyish signal of earlier years, I tapped lightly on the door. Mother and dad rushed to meet me.

"Roger," the two of them cried, speaking in one breath. "How—how did you get here? You were in Brazil when you last wrote."

"Well, I was there a few days ago, when I mailed that Christmas letter. But after I dropped it in the box, I got such a longing to see you both. And I thought you'd like to see me, too," I added, placing an arm around mother's shoulder.

"Why—why—it's just heaven to have you here, Roger. But tell us how you made it?"

"I found that by taking a plane I could get here on Christmas Eve, so I came. I've got two days to stay, but we'll make the most of them."

"You bet we will!" Dad interrupted, as he placed another log upon the hearth. "We're going to have one wonderful Christmas. Mother and myself will go the limit to show our appreciation of the long trip you made to spend Christmas with two old folks like us."—Katharine Edelman.

NEAR CHRISTMAS

"Did your wife give you particular fits because you came home at three o'clock the other morning?" "No, she didn't say a word. It's too near Christmas."

Deserves Remembrance

Remember the Christmas day to keep it wholly by remembering that the name of the New York editor who wrote the famous editorial, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus," was Church. He has long since passed to his reward. His tombstone should be buried in holly wreaths every Christmas.

December's Honor

No other festival is so purely altruistic as Christmas. No other so elevates and ennobles the home, the whole of December is delightful, notwithstanding snow and sleet and storm, because December has the honor of numbering Christmas among its marching days.—The Country Home.

If you use paper lanterns containing lighted candles among your decorations, put a little sand in the bottom of each. This will steady them and perhaps prevent a disaster.

CELEBRITIES, ONCE TUBERCULOSIS PATIENTS, SPONSOR CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN

National Christmas Seal Campaign Committee

One of the most unique national campaign committees ever organized will head the twenty-seventh annual Christmas Seal sale to be launched throughout the United States Thanksgiving Day by the 2,084 affiliated tuberculosis associations. Every member of the committee is noteworthy for the fact that he has not only won a personal battle with tuberculosis, but since his recovery has attained eminence. Members of the committee, shown above, are: 1. Will Irwin, author, New York City; 2. Dr. William Charles White, Washington D. C., chairman; 3. Harold Bell Wright, novelist, Tucson, Ariz.; 4. Hobart Bosworth, actor, Beverly Hills, Calif.; 5. Roger W. Babson, statistician, Babson Park, Mass.; 6. Professor Irving Fisher, political economist, New Haven, Conn.; 7. Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer, La Mesa, Calif.; 8. Eugene O'Neill, playwright, Sea Island, Ga. Inset shows the Christmas Seal.

New York, Dec. 4.—Nine distinguished Americans, all of whom at one time or another have won a personal battle with tuberculosis, are sponsoring the twenty-seventh annual Christmas seal sale which started throughout the country on Thanksgiving Day with 2,084 local associations participating. The announcement was made here today at the office of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Members of the national committee are: Eugene O'Neill, playwright; Roger W. Babson, statistician; Harold Bell Wright, novelist; Professor Irving Fisher, political economist; Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer; Will Irwin, author; Hobart Bosworth, motion picture actor and director; and Dr. William Charles White, chairman. Dr. White is head of the medical research committee of the National Tuberculosis Association.

In consenting to act, several members of the committee accompanied their acceptance with personal statements.

WILL IRWIN: "Glad to act on your committee of ex-tuberculosis victims. I am proud of my victory."

IRVING FISHER: "The financial loss from tuberculosis to the people of America, estimated at hundreds of millions of dollars a year, is a wholly inadequate measure to the cost of the disease in terms of broken homes, blasted hopes, poverty and pain. The twenty-seventh annual Christmas seal sale this year offers a chance for all to share in solving this community problem."

ROGER BABSON: "Despite the declining death rate from tuberculosis since the beginning of the century, the disease still kills more persons between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other. It is imperative that the preventive measures successful in the past be continued if the ground gained is to be held."

HOBART BOSWORTH: "The ten years I spent in fighting tuberculosis were the best investment I ever made. I am amazed when I think of the progress made in knowledge of prevention and cure, which the little Christmas seal makes available to everybody."

HAROLD BELL WRIGHT: "As one who knows from experience what it means to come face to face with the White Plague, I am glad to give any help I can to the campaign to conquer the disease."

CHAS. W. CADMAN: "The years have proved that this work does inestimable good."

In announcing the formation of the committee to sponsor the Christmas seal sale, the chairman, Dr. White, said the members were outstanding examples that tuberculosis is curable, and that its prevention is a matter of great importance to society. "Tuberculosis is no respecter of persons," said Dr. White. "It still kills more people between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other disease. This is true despite the reduction of the ravages of the disease to one-third what they were when the first Christmas seals were sold. "What the world would have lost had the members of this committee been born a generation earlier, when the disease was almost universally fatal, is evident from the mere recital of their names. What it has actually lost in the premature deaths of others such as Robert Louis Stevenson, Elizabeth Barrett Browning and Frederic Chopin, will never be known. But there can be no doubt that the world has lost many scholars, musicians, dramatists, writers and actors who never lived long enough to find their way to fame."

"There is hope that science sometime will provide a specific cure for the disease. But all we have, so far, is hope, and certain definite promise for some of the new knowledge that has recently been gathered. We are often disappointed by finding things happen to the germ in the laboratory that do not happen, unfortunately, the same way in the human body. Until the problem of tuberculosis has been solved, we need to redouble our efforts along the lines which have already achieved great success: early diagnosis, followed by treatment based on rest, fresh air, sunshine, and nourishing food. "The experience of the members of this committee," added Dr. White, "emphasizes again the need for preventive work with children. Most of the group had tuberculosis in their early youth. It is an interesting fact that their average age today is fifty-eight years."

The committee members are drawn from every section of the United States. Dr. White lives in Washington, D. C.; Mr. O'Neill's home is at Sea Island, Ga.; Mr. Babson's at Babson Park, Mass.; Mr. Wright's at Tucson, Ariz.; Prof. Fisher, New Haven, Conn.; Mr. Cadman, La Mesa, Calif.; Mr. Irwin, New York City and Mr. Bosworth Beverly Hills, Calif.

Weather Not Too Bad to Deliver Yule Presents

TOMMY earned twenty-five cents a week bringing the mail a mile up the hilly road to people who lived that far from the post office. He came in all weather, winter and summer. On cold days of sleet and snow, he wore a man's sou'wester and oilskins, also rubber boots. Under the broad brim, his face always smiled; he never seemed tired, and no matter how severe the weather, would always reply, "Oh, not too bad!" when you asked him about it.

Toward Christmas the mail became very heavy. Tommy puffed and struggled up the hills, sometimes staggering in after eight o'clock in the evening.

On Christmas Eve it grew to be half-past eight, then nine, then half-past. No Tommy. People waited for him, peering out of frosty windows. The weather was bitter cold. At last there was the familiar tramping on the kitchen steps. The door burst open—and in fell Tommy completely buried in bundles. They picked him up and saw that he had a bad bruise on one cheek.

"What was the matter?" they asked.

"Oh, I had a lot of bundles and a wooden box," grinned the boy. "When I came to Candy hill it was right slippery. So I hauled all them packages aboard the wooden box, got onto 'er, and slid to the bottom. I capsized there and kind of hurt myself."

The family gave him hot chocolate and a present. Then in a sort of affectionate amusement, they asked the same old question: "How was the weather, Tommy?"

"Oh, not too bad!" smiled the boy.

"You get a dollar this week," said the head of the family, "for being the best sport in the country, and for doing your job without complaints. Here's to a regular feller!"

"How's that?" grinned one of the others.

"Not too bad," smiled Tommy.

Christmas Is the Time for Reverent Gratitude

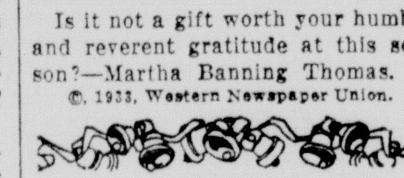

IT SOMETIMES happens that, like a bolt from the blue, one is struck by the Wonder of the commonplace. Things you have accepted for years; sights you have looked at with blind eyes become, all in a moment, revealed to you in a new light.

The sun comes up in the east every morning and goes down in the west. For how many thousand years we do not know, let the scientists calculate as they will. It is the giver and preserver of life. It rags from dried, unlovely seeds the miracle of living green, the color of flowers, the fragrance of the lilies. It passes over the earth touching things . . . Africa's hidden jungles . . . It warms for a space the bleak shores of Labrador, it kindles the peaks of the Rockies, and stares down into the awful craters of volcanoes. Behind the gray of winter, the snows of December, it travels its unvarying course.

Yet this indescribable wonder we can see plainly with our eyes. We know its very shape as it goes down in the west . . . it is a ball of fire, a balloon of light, a golden platter. Considering the power and glory of its passage . . . is it not a miracle that we, with infinite vision, may look at it?

Other matters may be hid, but the sun we see, and feel, and live by . . . millions and millions of people from Rangoon to New York, from Capetown to Spitzbergen, depend on it with careless assurance, to keep its course, and to save the world from darkness and death.

Is it not a gift worth your humble and reverent gratitude at this season?—Martha Banning Thomas.

Chester, Nova Scotia

Chester, one of the watering places of Nova Scotia, settled in 1760 by families from New England, is situated on a peninsula at the head of Mahone bay with its countless islands, whose harbors and coves were in the early days the rendezvous for pirates and their low-sailing craft flying the black flag. It is on Oak island, only four miles from Chester, that the notorious Captain Kidd is said to have buried treasure, and although many have searched for it for years, it has remained buried to this day.

Christmas and Bethlehem

WHATEVER the story may have been behind the selection, Christmas and Bethlehem appear in various states as the names of cities, towns, or mere postoffices. Arizona, Florida and Kentucky have places named Christmas, and Christmas Cove is the name of a town in Maine.

Bethlehem seems to have had an appeal for townspeople planners in Connecticut, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Maryland, New Hampshire, Indiana and Pennsylvania, as there is a place of that name in each of those states.

Indiana, however, is the only state of the Union which has a postoffice named Santaclaus (the Postoffice department makes it one word). It is at Christmas time that Santaclaus attains its widest popularity and fame, for the daily newspapers always work up a good wise story about it.

At Christmas and the few days preceding, the postmaster at Santaclaus receives from all parts of the country letters asking him to mail enclosed letters, which are stamped and addressed, from his postoffice with the Santaclaus postmark upon them. These, running literally into the thousands, are almost invariably addressed to children. Imagine the excitement when little eyes read right there in plain letters, "Santaclaus"! And coming through the mail, too, from away off—maybe up somewhere near the North Pole!

Whatever it may be at other seasons of the year, business at the Santaclaus postoffice booms at Christmas time, especially just when some packages are beginning to come in to be remailed with the Santaclaus postmark.

A Merry Christmas to the postmaster at Santaclaus, Ind.—Charles Frederick Wadsworth.

The Yule-Log With Their Initials, in the Grate

JACK BARTON was helping to load the Yule log when he noticed the carved initials "DLJB" and the surrounding heart. With a shock it brought back memories of the day, so long ago, when he and Dora had plinked in the woods, and he had carved those letters there.

The lighting of the Yule log was an impressive part of the little town's Christmas Eve celebration. As the flames caught it up, Jack watched Dora there across the hall. He wondered whether she had noticed the initials. And then he saw her brush her hand across her eyes, and suddenly leave the room.

Everyone else was too engrossed in the festivities to notice, and presently he, too, stole out.

He found Dora in a parked sedan, sobbing. Gently he opened the door and came in beside her. She sat up hurriedly and dried her eyes.

"Did you see it, too?" he asked.

"Yes," Dora answered. "I suppose I'm silly, but it seemed as if all the past was burning there."

"By jove," said Jack, "that is a thought."

"What?"

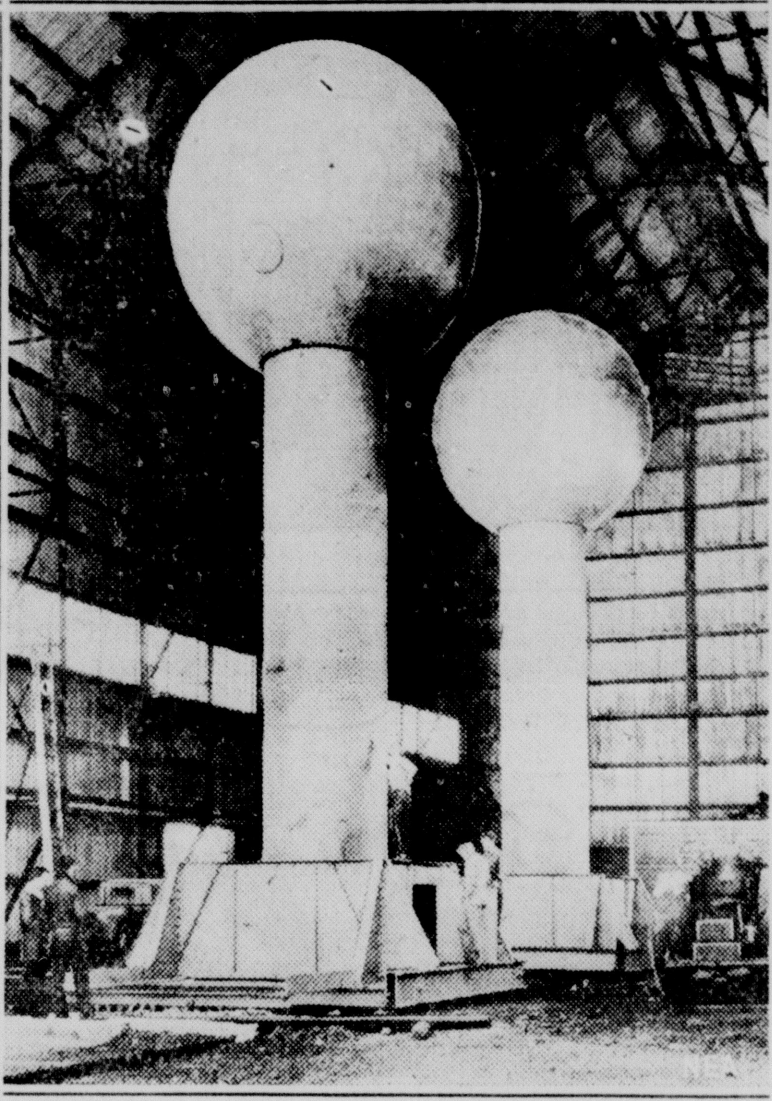

"All the past did burn there, Dora. There were some jolly times, but there were a lot of misunderstandings, too. Let's carve our initials on another tree, and start all over again!"—Helen Galsford.

Science Aims Biggest Guns at Atom

The heaviest artillery ever built to bombard the smallest bits of matter is shown here during construction by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, near New Bedford. Those 15-foot metallic spheres, on 25-foot columns, will store up static electricity until a bolt of 10,000,000 volts leaps between them. Scientists inside each of the spheres, and quite safe, will aim the tremendous force through vacuum tubes at the nuclei of a few atoms. If the atoms are shattered the experimenters may learn something about how to release and utilize the incalculable amount of energy which is believed to be stored up in the atoms comprising all matter.

CHRISTMAS PLATE

ONE of the very nicest things one can receive at Christmas time is an attractive old plate, and it will be nicer still if it contains a few homemade cookies. Take a large square of holiday paper in a color harmonizing with the decorations of the plate, gather it together at the top, with the corners all frilled out, and finish off with a spray of mistletoe, gold or silver leaves, or a contrasting bow.

Christmas Breakfast

Within recent years open house at breakfast Christmas morning has been growing more and more popular. It probably all started when friends and relatives dropped in to bring gifts and found the late-rising members of the family still at table. Mother made another pot of coffee, urged the visitors to join the family, and another of the most pleasant social customs was born. Nowadays the perfect hostess prepares for an indeterminate number at the holiday breakfast.

Santa Claus limits himself to simple benevolences. He cannot be expected to make an especial favorite of the police and provide solutions for all the mysteries.

Christmas Experience, Helping to Play Santa

IT WAS Christmas Eve. The fast express was roaring through the night. In the smoker, half a dozen of us were talking, telling Christmas experiences we had known.

"The strangest Christmas I ever spent," I began, when it came my turn, "was about fifteen years ago. I was obliged to stop over in a small western town, and felt a bit sorry for myself. I was convinced Christmas was going to be a pretty dull affair."

"I think it was along about this time on Christmas Eve, while I was sitting in the hotel room, that some one tapped lightly on my door. Opening it, I beheld a stranger standing there."

"May I come in a minute?" he asked.

"Why certainly," I replied, as I swung the door wider. "I'll be mighty glad of your company."

"The man fidgeted quite a bit before he spoke."

"I'm going to make a very strange request," he faltered; "I'm going to ask you, a stranger, to help me play Santa Claus. Years ago, in the transfer of a mining claim, I cheated a man. . . . His family are now in need, and I wanted to do something. The thing has been driving me almost crazy."

"I don't want anyone in town to know about it, that's why I'm calling upon a stranger. It must all be done through you."

"That Christmas I spent $1,000 on a family I had never seen before, binding them to secrecy, and giving the excuse of being an eccentric millionaire who wanted to make a merry Christmas for some one else."—Katherine Edelman.

Ask Your Husband These Questions Tonight...

1. What part of your present income would continue to me if you were to die this year?
2. Would the income from your present investments support me (and the children in comfort)?
3. Is your estate in such condition that funds would be available for immediate expenses following death?
4. What is an "Insurance Income" and would that relieve me from investing the money from your life insurance policies in other securities I know nothing about?
5. Would a college educational policy be desirable to provide for our children's education after your death?
6. If you "can't afford" a $100 premium, can I get along without an insurance income?
7. It is your custom when leaving home to leave enough money to keep the family during your absence. I am asking these questions to find out how it would be if sometime you didn't return. Do you blame me for thinking of these things before it is too late?

More Than Light

While electric service was used almost exclusively for lighting no more than ten years ago, less than 50% of the electricity used by the average customer today is for illumination. The rest is consumed by appliances that relieve you of drudgery and make your home more comfortable.

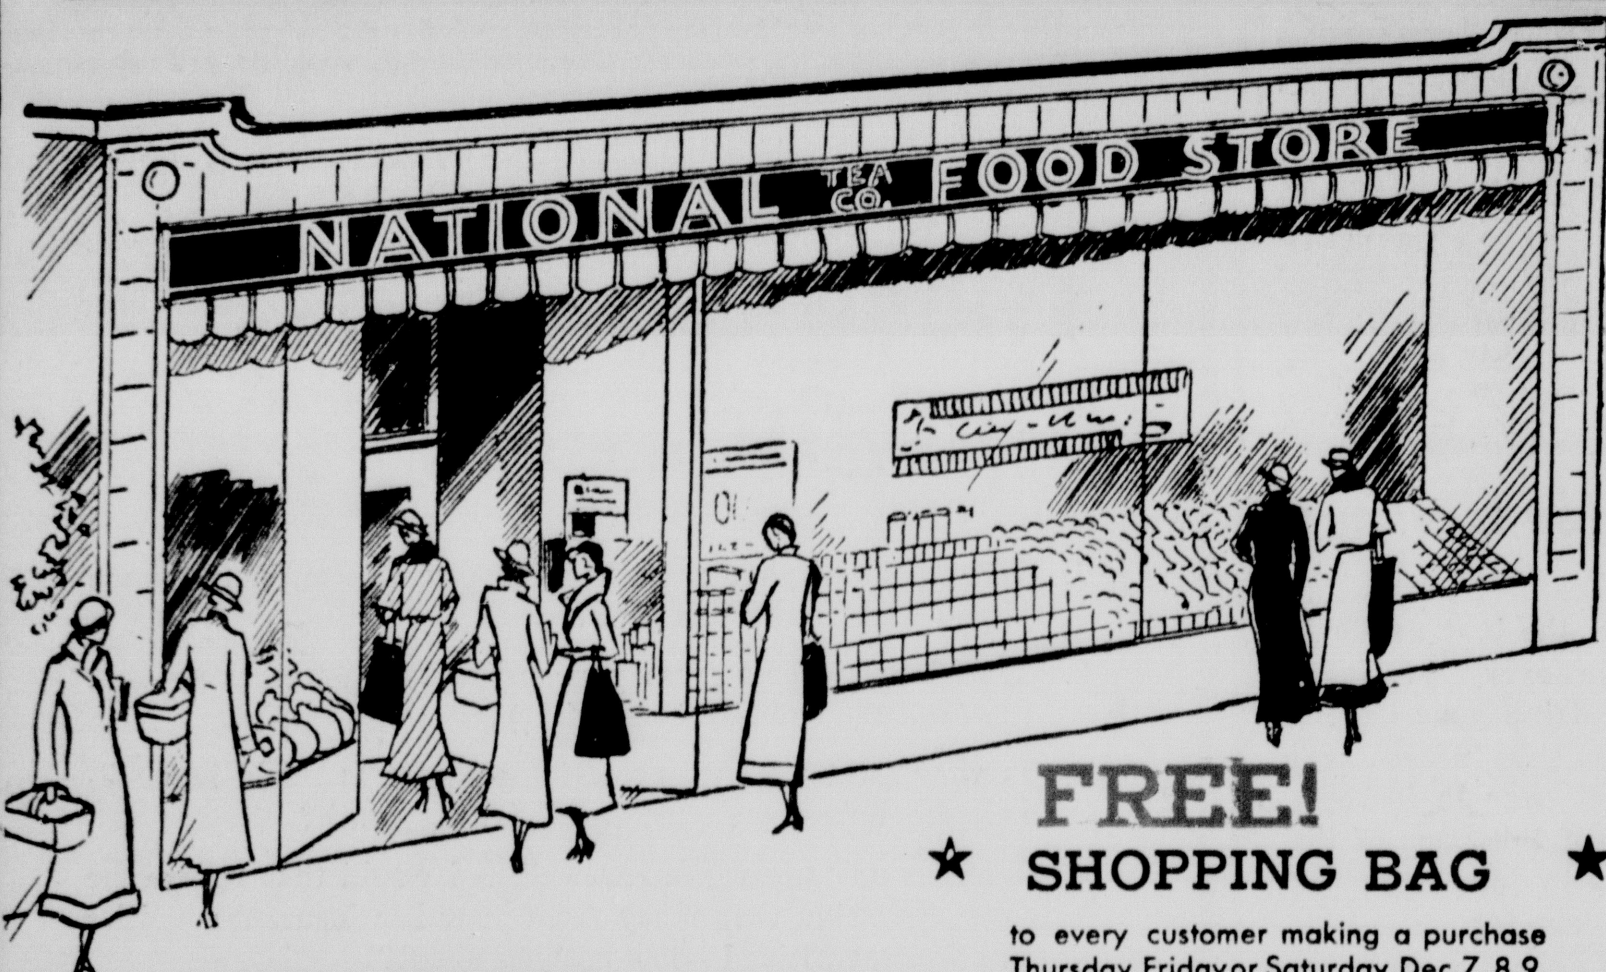

Electricity today washes for you on Monday, irons on Tuesday, cleans your floors daily, keeps your food fresh and wholesome, and entertains you by radio, day or night. It toasts your bread, makes your waffles, keeps accurate time, and performs a host of other duties.

This magic, efficient servant, electricity, constantly at your command, does more than seventy-five distinct useful things in your home.
